

Following meeting with county officials

Rhodes promises no rerun of gas shortage this winter

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald City Editor

Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes visited Washington C. H. Monday, and promised "we will not go through another winter like last year."

The Governor made no claims about being able to control the weather, but he did mention that there would be enough energy to keep Ohio's schools, factories, and businesses open this winter.

"I want Columbia (Gas of Ohio) to drill 400 new wells in Ohio. We are not going to go through another winter with a natural gas shortage," Rhodes firmly said following an informal "town meeting" in the Fayette County Courthouse.

Rhodes claimed if Columbia Gas of Ohio followed his plans, there would be enough natural gas available to supply Ohio's energy needs even if the temperature drops to 30 below.

The Governor leaned on the large gas company Friday requesting that it help purchase and develop natural gas reserves in Ohio along with independent gas producers. Officials of Columbia Gas of Ohio told Rhodes they would have an answer to his request within a week.

"They want to let 500,000 to 600,000 acres stand by while they ship gas in from the Southwest," Rhodes said of the gas company that is the major supplier for the Dayton Power and Light Co. and so, indirectly, the major natural gas supplier to Fayette County.

THE GOVERNOR wasn't referring to Southwest Ohio when he mentioned Columbia Gas of Ohio's reported plan to ship in natural gas and let large reserves in Ohio remain untapped.

"We have an abundance of natural gas. One of the largest energy supplies in North America is in Ohio with our coal and gas," the Governor pointed out. "How do you think industry got started in this state, it wasn't the weather," he jokingly added. Rhodes has proposed that 20 drillers completing 20 wells apiece by Nov. 1 could provide Columbia with an additional 20 billion cubic feet of gas this winter. If temperatures are as severe as this past winter, it has been estimated that between 20 and 25 billion cubic feet of natural gas will be needed to stave off an energy shortage this winter.

Even if Columbia Gas of Ohio heeds the Governor's plan and helps finance the drilling of 400 wells, more drilling rigs will be needed. With Rhodes changing into the energy problem full tilt, the state plans to place advertisements in trade magazines to locate and employ more drilling rigs. Coal is another important aspect that could ward off a similar shortage of heat and electricity that the state experienced last year, according to Rhodes.

The Governor said the state is considering the use of "fluidized beds" to limit the sulfur content in Ohio's coal and make it cleaner.

Rhodes explained the process which uses limestone to take out the sulfur. "It is environmentally clean and will meet EPA standards," the Governor said. He added that coal could account for 60 per cent of all energy in Ohio.

ENERGY WAS not the Governor's only concern about the past winter's effect on Fayette County.

In opening the informal meeting with various elected Fayette County officials Monday, Rhodes said he made three requests for disaster assistance from the Federal Government. He noted that he was turned down all three times.

The Governor noted that frozen orange groves in Florida, various oil spills, a drought out West, and even an earthquake in Europe were disasters, but not 1.2 million people out of work and three-quarters of the schools closed in Ohio.

Rhodes pointed out that helicopters were needed to drop food to Fayette County residents due to drifting snow, but still the area was not declared a disaster.

The Governor reported that he is still seeking federal assistance to cover the effects of the past winter. He reportedly has requested $190 million in federal funds for the repair of state highways which were damaged during the frigid months of this year.

GOOD QUESTION — Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes held court in the Fayette County Courthouse Monday afternoon to field questions from the various elected officials in the county. The question and answer session lasted nearly an hour.

Pay raise issue proves 'hot potato'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is reaching for one of the hottest potatoes on its legislative menu — a vote on whether to repeal the $12,900 pay raise members of Congress began receiving March 1.

The key vote, which may come Wednesday, should be extremely close. The House planned a relatively minor vote today on waiving a smaller pay raise that hasn't yet taken effect. The waiver was considered sure to be approved.

The major test will be on an amendment to strike from the legislative appropriation bill funds for the higher salary congressmen have been getting for more than three months. The Democratic leadership is trying to muster the votes to defeat that amendment, something sources said they have not yet succeeded at.

If the amendment survives the rest of the legislative process, the annual pay of representatives and senators would be cut from $57,500 to $44,600.

And there would be similar reductions in the salaries of federal judges and other high officials, including the vice president, Cabinet members and top ranking federal employees.

Part of the leadership strategy is to ensure that any pay cut would apply to all these groups, not just members of Congress. Theoretically, that would make a cutback harder to justify.

The rules committee is being counted on to take care of this parliamentary requirement.

Whatever action the House takes is subject, however, to Senate review.

If House members pass the appropriations bill minus the funds to cover the raises during the next fiscal year, the Senate would not have to go along. Senators could vote to put the money for their raises back into the bill. That would send the bill to a conference committee made up of representatives from both chambers, whose job would be to reach a compromise agreeable to both the House and Senate.

Proponents of the pay increase could argue that the House should not let itself be dealt an inferior status.

There is a precedent for paying senators more than representatives.

Supreme Court hands down ruling

Nixon not entitled to tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled today that former President Richard M. Nixon is not entitled to control the White House tapes and 42 million pages of documents left behind when he resigned from office.

The justices, voting 7-2, decided that Congress acted within its authority when in 1974 it passed the Presidential Recordings and Materials Preservation Act, seizing all of the documents and tapes generated by Nixon's presidency.

The act calls for regulations to be drawn up by the General Services Administration to allow the public access to the papers and tapes.

The court rejected all arguments by Nixon's attorneys that the law was unconstitutional.

The decision is a victory for the government, which has fought for the last three years to hold on to the nearly 5,000 hours of tape recordings and the millions of pages of documents.

Specifically, the court's majority ruled that the law passed by Congress to prevent Nixon from taking the tapes and documents with him to San Clemente after his resignation on Aug. 9, 1974 did not violate the doctrine of separation of powers between the branches of government, did not violate Nixon's privilege of confidentiality or his right to privacy.

The court also said the law was not a "bill of attainder" — an individualized penalty imposed by a legislature rather than a court.

Justice William J. Brennan wrote the court's majority opinion, joined by Justices Potter Stewart, Thurgood Marshall and John Paul Stevens.

Justices Byron R. White, Lewis F. Powell and Harry A. Blackmun joined most parts of the decision.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice William H. Rehnquist dissented.

Among the almost 900 reels of tape covered by the court's decision are the now-famous 30 tapes which helped force Nixon from office in disgrace in the wake of the Watergate scandals.

Nixon estimates that of the 42 million pages of documents held by the government — at the White House and the National Records Center in Suitland, Md. — he personally wrote or reviewed some 200,000 pages.

The tapes now will remain with the government until archivists sift through them to determine which can be released to the public and which may be returned to Nixon. The tapes include conversations in the White House Oval Office, the Cabinet Room, the Lincoln Sitting Room and Nixon's offices at the Executive Office Building and Camp David in Maryland.

Foreign visitors reflect on past year in U.S.

By RICK WHAITE

"They told us we were going to meet very friendly people in Ohio," said Roberto. "It's true."

"Everybody says 'Hi, hi, hi,'" added Al.

And the general impression among six of the 42 American Field Service (AFS) students who stayed in Washington C. H. over the past three days is that the residents are very friendly.

Roberto Abolnik, an AFS student from Bolivia, came to the U.S. in August to attend a year of school at Wisconsin Lutheran High School in Milwaukee, Wis.

"I had a great time. The experiences start as soon as you leave home," Roberto said.

Now, the AFS students are all returning home after completing a year of schooling at various high schools in Wisconsin. The students, who represent 30 different nations, spent three full days in Washington C. H. as part of their bus tour to New York where they will catch air flights to their homelands.

They left this morning about 11 a.m. for Jeanette, Penn., near Pittsburgh, where they will spend another three days. From there it will be Brookfield Center, Conn., then on to New York.

Alvinus (Al) Hasugulfil, of Micronesia, also spent his year at Wisconsin Lutheran High School where he had his first encounter with physics and algebra. He said he would study from the time he finished dinner until his "parents" closed his books for him and told him to go to bed, usually around midnight.

Al said he felt school in the U.S. was more difficult than his island school. With more courses to choose from and some he had never had, he said it was "like a challenge."

Of studying, Al said, "It's fun. You can be proud of yourself for achieving something."

Although they have had English courses for many years, the language was the first obstacle most of the AFS students confronted. For Roberto, who had three years of English at a German school, it was like learning from scratch. For Al, who had 11 years, it was keeping up with technical lectures. But for Renzo Pasini, who had five years at his school in Italy, American English was "a different type of

CPSC takes bang out of fireworks for glorious 4th

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fireworks stands are springing up like dandelions along America's roadsides as the country prepares to blast and sparkle its way through another Fourth of July.

But you'll get a little less bang out of your pyrotechnics this year because of the controversial regulations the federal government put into effect last winter.

After a 1974 move to ban fireworks was roundly criticized, the Consumer Products Safety Commission settled last winter for establishing restrictions on the power of fireworks sold to consumers.

Firecrackers, for example, are now limited to 50 milligrams of powder, the charge found in the small "ladyfingers" often sold in strings.

The previous limit had been 130 milligrams.

Other provisions govern the explosives' fuses, labeling, and contents.

The commission's regulation applies to fireworks sold across state lines and has no effect on various state laws limiting or prohibiting fireworks.

Sixteen states ban fireworks sales entirely. These are Arizona, Connecticut, Delaware, Georgia, Illinois, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Rhode Island, Vermont and West Virginia.

At the other end, Hawaii and Nevada have no fireworks regulations at all. The rest of the states and the District of Columbia allow some fireworks while prohibiting others. In addition, many local governments have their own restrictions.

There have been few seizures of banned fireworks since the rule took effect Dec. 6, officials say. They add that, in general, the regulation is being complied with.

On Thursday, the District of Columbia appeals court ordered the federal commission to clarify its regulation, but did not knock down the rule.

The commission has estimated that as many as 9,000 persons were injured last year by fireworks, half of them aged 15 or younger.

The American Pyrotechnics Association notes that most injuries result from handling fireworks improperly, not from a malfunctioning product.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission has these suggestions for those planning to celebrate July Fourth with fireworks:

- Read and follow the directions.
- Don't explode fireworks unless an adult is present.
- Never experiment by taking fireworks apart or mixing anything with the contents.
- Don't set off fireworks indoors.
- Light the explosives one at a time.
- Have a bucket of water handy.
- Never ignite fireworks in a glass bottle or other small container.
- Store fireworks in a cool, dry place.
- Never give them to small children.

language" than the kind he had studied.

Renzo, who attended Schabogen (Wisc.) High School, was first impressed by the "big cars" in the U.S. "Gasoline is $2.30 per gallon in Italy, so everyone drives small cars. Here, the cars were so big. And the chains of stores, everything is big," he said.

Renzo said he thinks it would be hard to start a small business in the U.S. because the big department stores "have everything."

Like most of the other AFS students, Renzo arrived in the U.S. in August and witnessed the 1976 presidential elections. He was surprised the high school students here were not interested in the election.

"People don't talk about politics here," he noted. "It's very different than Italy."

"I got fed up with it," said Wendy Brooks of England. "Too much mud-slinging and too much money. It's like a big business."

Wendy attended Homestead (Wisc.) High School. She said she found American schools easier than her native England, where finals are given at the end of 12-year terms.

Of her year as an AFS student, Wendy said, "Even though you're with a family, you're still on your own. It's a growing experience. You kind of mature."

Andrea Jitschin, from Germany, also found American school work easier, but enjoyed starting the day with a physical education class. She joined the girls volleyball and track teams at Beaver Dam High School in Wisconsin, and enjoyed ice-skating in the winter.

She described her stay in the U.S. as "unique" and found the variety America has to offer very interesting. She stayed with six families during the school year.

"I liked being part of the families. I argued with them so I guess I was part of the family," she quipped.

"The first few days were hard because I was the only Black in the area," said Margaret Emonde, of Kenya. But with the help of her family sponsors, found the people to be "very friendly."

"I didn't expect the U.S. to be as it is," she said. "Tourists give a very different impression."

She added that many of her countrymen think America is one big city with no countryside because of the American television programs aired in Kenya. She also said she expected to see a lot of cowboys.

Tourists tend to give Kenyans the impression that all Americans are rich, though she added she found that not true at all.

Margaret graduated with the end of this school year and plans to attend college as a nursing student when she returns home. Andrea has two years left in the German equivalent of high school, which runs through the 13th grade. Wendy graduated and wants to work, possibly as a caterer, when she gets home. Renzo, who has one more year of school, will attend college to study economics. Al, who is the son of a fisherman, would like to attend the California Maritime School in Monterey and get his license as a ship's captain. And Roberto will study medicine at a university.

The AFS students' experience in American high schools was aptly summed up by Roberto.

"If we learned something good, we can apply it to our life when we return home."

An approaching cool front should provide relief Wednesday from the hot and humid conditions in Ohio.

Warm, moist air from the Gulf of Mexico was expected to spread over the state today and send temperatures into the upper 80s.

More showers and thunderstorms are expected tonight as a cool front speeds southeast toward Ohio.

Cooler, drier air will spread over the state Wednesday, bringing an end to the showers. High temperatures Wednesday are forecast in the 70s and low 80s.

Showers Monday night were mostly in the southern and eastern counties. More than three-quarters of an inch of rain fell in Columbus. And more than one-half inch was recorded at Marietta.

Extended outlook for Ohio, Thursday through Saturday: fair Thursday and a chance of showers Friday and Saturday. Highs Thursday in the upper 70s and 80s, lows in the upper 50s and 60s. Highs Friday and Saturday in the 80s and low 90s and lows in the 60s.

The route to success.

The route to success is a newspaper route.

Young people who manage routes just seem to be the kind destined for success.

They like doing their own thing. Earning their own money. Operating their own business. Building for the future.

As a result, you will find (as surveys tell us) that young newspaper carriers stand out. They are self-reliant, responsible, and do better than most others at school.

Besides, they have more fun. It is fun to be a success. May we tell you how a newspaper route operates and how it can be the route to success for you. There is no obligation.

Opinion And Comment

Recycling makes sence

Constituent newsletters, legislative questionnaires and the like sent out by some members of Congress bear a variant of this legend: Printed on recycled paper. This practice betokens what might be — that is, the widespread use of a new paper reconstituted from old.

The depressing fact of the matter is that, although this would save a lot of resources and energy, recycling of paper is on the decline. So is the recycling of other important materials. The point was made recently by Mark Braly, Los Angeles' energy coordinator, in a

Los Angeles Times article. "For the most part," Braly wrote, "the recovery and re-use of most materials has declined for many years. In 1944, for example, more than 35 per cent of paper was recycled; in 1974 the figure was less than 19 per cent. For more than a decade, steel makers have consistently drawn on scrap for more than half of their needs — but that's just the problem: the practice has stabilized at that level."

Braly lays the blame on "a formidable thicket of organizational problems — many of them created by the government," and concludes that "In our society, regrettably, almost everything works against recycling." Other experts have drawn the same conclusion.

The consensus among them is that our society would reap significant rewards if this could be turned around to make recycling the rule rather than the exception.

They are plainly correct. National energy policy should include strong emphasis on changing law and custom to encourage rather than frustrate re-use of a wide range of materials.

A WORD EDGEWISE...By John P. Roche

Human Rights in the Abattoir

At a recent meeting in New York, Allard K. Lowenstein, who has been playing "Tonto" to Andy Young's "Lone Ranger," objected when a friend of mine raised the issue of human rights in its Indochinese context. The gist of Al's message was that we should all drop the "divisive" subject of Vietnam and move forward into a smiling future.

How charming! While the Khmer Rouge is ruthlessly engaged in what an impartial French observer called "self-genocide"; with at least a fifth of the population dead or dying; while the South China Sea is dotted with tiny craft full of Vietnamese, who have adopted New Hampshire's motto "Live free or die" and are mostly dying; while, in short, Indochina is an abattoir, Lowenstein suggests we forget it. Vietnam is part of a bad old past, one which saw Americans divided; the response is drop that reel from the historical film.

Al's offer to let us all off the historical hook is not without a certain disingenuous quality. Wasn't it Egyptian President Anwar Sadat who embraced Secretary of State Kissinger in the wake of the 1973 Yom Kippur War and said, "Why don't we just let Israel to let bygones be bygones?" Well, I'm one stubborn old social democrat who isn't going to pull down the shades: it was Lowenstein and his pals in the "Dump Johnson" movement who played a tragic role in turning Indochina into a totalitarian inferno.

True, I can't rewrite history: we lost. The basic ingredient in our defeat was isolationist — Americans don't like fighting interminable wars at the end of the world for murky objectives. However, what Lowenstein & Co. did was mount a major campaign to obscure the fundamental issue in South Vietnam: defending the freedom of decent people from a branch of "Murder, Inc." In fairness, he was never a "Hanoi hawk," one of those who advocated victory for the "progressive North Vietnamese." He and his associates orchestrated a different theme: the dictatorial corruption of the Thieu regime. In essence they blurred the line between North and South, reinforcing in this country the Pavlovian reaction that it didn't really make any difference who won. Of course, the Thieu regime was corrupt, but corruption there was simply old-fashioned stealing, not the infinitely worse corruption of the soul one finds in totalitarian societies. Sure Thieu's government was dictatorial in aspiration, and its police were perhaps half as rough as the Mexican, yet its real problem was weakness. Anybody whose moral calculations put Saigon in the same league with Hanoi should spend a junior year in Gulag.

As the Communist butcher's bills have accumulated from South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia, the lesson is that human rights are not an all-or-nothing affair, that, in Arthur Koestler's phrase, our fate in this world is to defend the half-truth against the total lie. Specifically, the last thing our human rights honchos should do is blackout Southeast Asia and switch to Africa or Latin America.

So much for ancient history. The question now is what should we do about those poor souls floating around the ocean, denied entry by nation after nation, aided by only a handful of organizations with limited funds? Or even those lucky few who have managed somewhere to obtain temporary refuge? To ask the question is to answer it. We should launch a crash program to save their lives and resettle them in nations where they are welcome. First among the latter should be the United States, historically a haven for brave people of all backgrounds who have chosen to live free or die.

Unfortunately the Administration seems to have adopted the Lowenstein line. Take the case of Nguyen Cong Hoan, the anti-Thieu politician who was considered sufficiently "progressive" by Hanoi to warrant a seat in the National Assembly of the new united Vietnam. Rapidly disillusioned. Hoan and two colleagues of the former Saigon opposition to Thieu managed to escape to Japan. Have they been brought to the United States to express their views on Hanoi's graveyard peace?

No, they are isolated for holding a press conference explicating Hanoi's version of "people's democracy." The American State Department has treated them like lepers. Hoan applied for permission to emigrate to the United States, was told to be "patient," and now is apparently on indefinite "hold." Why? Because he is a disinterested witness to the moral bankruptcy of any policy of "normalization" of American relations with Hanoi. Dump Lowenstein!

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with great versatility, a high order of intelligence and a delightful personality. Also blessed with an almost limitless compassion for others, you would make an outstanding physician, nurse or sociologist. In fact, no matter what occupation you eventually choose, its "service" angle will always be important to you, for you were born to give. You have a great appreciation for heritage and tradition; would make an excellent historian or archeologist; could also teach in these fields. Other areas suited to your talents: engineering, the law, science, painting. Traits to curb: jealousy and obstinacy.

Djibouti becomes independent

DJIBOUTI (AP) — The republic of Djibouti, a Massachusetts-size patch of salt and sand at the southern end of the Red Sea, became Africa's 49th independent state early today amid fireworks and 21-gun salutes.

The new nation's future is threatened by its rival Marxist-ruled neighbors, Somalia and Ethiopia, and a lack of any natural resources except salt and its strategic location. It will depend on France, its colonial ruler for 115 years, for troops to protect it and economic aid to keep it alive.

President Hassan Gouled raised the republic's flag — green and blue with a red star — at one minute after midnight to open three days of independence celebrations. French warships in the harbor of the capital fired gun salutes and blew their sirens. There were fireworks and people chanted "Long Live Independence!" But the atmosphere generally was quiet and restrained.

Djibouti is coveted by Ethiopia because its capital is Ethiopia's chief port and the terminus of the Addis Ababa-Djibouti railroad. Somalia wants it because more than half of its 300,000 people are ethnic Somalis and it is part of the "Greater Somalia" which the Somali government is pledged to unite.

Western Europe, the United States, the Soviet Union, Israel and the Arabs are concerned about the control of Djibouti because it is situated on the south side of the Bab el Mandeb, the strait which connects the Suez Canal and Red Sea with the Gulf of Aden and the Indian Ocean. About 70 ships a day pass through the strait, including oil tankers and warships of many nations.

The leader of Ethiopia's military government, Lt. Col. Mengistu Haile Mariam, told a rally in Addis Ababa on Saturday that Somalia has designs on Djibouti. Somali President Siad Barre has said it is Ethiopia which intends to take over Djibouti and Somalia has a duty to defend it.

Leaders of Somalia and Ethiopia were invited to the independence ceremonies but did not come. Some 15 countries, the United Nations, the Organization of African Unity and the Arab League are represented.

Formerly known as French Somaliland, Djibouti in 1967 was renamed the Territory of Afars and Issas, for its two major tribes. The Afars have ties with Ethiopia while the more numerous Issas, who provide Gouled's major support, are ethnic Somalis.

Gouled said the republic will pursue a neutral foreign policy.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

It's never too soon

to meet future in-laws

DEAR ABBY: Our only son, Sammy, is a wonderful young professional man who practices in another state. He recently became engaged to a girl who lives where he practices. We have met her and think she's a nice young woman, but we're wondering what kind of family she comes from.

Sammy telephoned last week, saying he wanted to bring the girl and her mother here to meet us. I discouraged him, saying it was too soon that I preferred to wait until after summer to have them here.

Today he called again to say they are coming! I was shocked to think that this girl and her mother would set aside formalities and come without my personal invitation. (I'm sure they pressured Sammy into it.)

Of course I'll be hospitable, but what do you think people who would come without a personal invitation from the hostess?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: After a couple has announced their engagement, it is never "too soon" for the families to meet. (In fact, it's customary to meet BEFORE.) I suspect you aren't too keen on Sammy's girl; your preference to "wait" reveals your reluctance to accept her.

If you don't want to lose your "wonderful son," you'd better mellow fast. Mother, and forgo the "formalities."

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend asked me if he could borrow my car, so I said okay. (His was in the shop.)

When he brought it back I noticed a cigarette butt with lipstick on it in the ashtray. I asked him how it got there, and he said he didn't know.

Do you believe it's possible that he doesn't know how it got there? Or do you think he's lying to me?

Your answer is very important to me, so please give it some thought.

HURT

DEAR HURT: One swallow doesn't make a spring, and one cigarette butt shouldn't necessarily hang a man. I would have to know more about your boyfriend and his record of reliability before expressing an opinion.

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand one more letter about the mockingbird? (A man signed DESPERATE couldn't bear to hear the song of a mockingbird because his wife who loved the bird had died.)

It wasn't a mockingbird's song that broke my heart. It was the sweet fragrance of the honeysuckle that grew on our back fence. Every time my husband would cut the grass, he'd pull a sprig of it, place it in his back pocket and whiff it every few moments.

Then my husband died suddenly. When I buried him, I buried the father of my two small sons, my lover, my teacher and my devoted companion.

During the first few months after his death, it was hot and humid, and the whole yard was heavy with the fragrance of honeysuckle. It seemed to follow me wherever I went. Of course, it reminded me of him.

Many people have told me to cut that honeysuckle bush down, but as it grows, so do I. My memories of him shall never die.

STILL TRYING

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, June 28, the 179th day of 1977. There are 186 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1914, the heir to the throne of Austria-Hungary, Archduke Francis Ferdinand, was assassinated at Sarejevo, Bosnia. It was the spark that set off the First World War.

On this date:

In 1778, the Revolutionary War Battle of Monmouth, N.J., took place. Molly Pitcher's aid to Colonial troops made her a heroine in American history.

In 1838, Britain's Queen Victoria was crowned.

In 1919, the Versailles Treaty was signed in France after World War One.

In 1941, guerrilla warfare against the Nazis began in Yugoslavia during World War Two.

In 1950, in the Korean War, North Korean soldiers captured the South Korean capital of Seoul.

In 1965, U.S. and South Vietnamese airplanes dropped nearly three million leaflets over North Vietnam, appealing to the people to press their leaders to end warfare against South Vietnam.

Ten years ago: King Hussein of Jordan met with President Lyndon Johnson in Washington to discuss Jordan's plight after the Six Day War with Israel.

Five years ago: President Richard Nixon announced another withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Vietnam and directed that no more draftees be sent to that country unless they volunteered.

One year ago: An Indian Ocean group of islands, the Seychelles, became independent after 162 years under British rule.

Today's birthday: Composer Richard Rodgers is 75.

Thought for today: "I don't know whether war is an interlude during peace, or peace an interlude during war." — Georges Clemenceau, French statesman, 1841-1929.

The American Rolling Mills Co., Armco, in Middletown, was founded in 1900 by George M. Verity. Verity pioneered in setting up one of the first laboratories for steel research in 1910, developing the continuous rolling mill process which changed steel-making. — AP

Rain aids farmers, but cuts field work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Here is the agriculture weather advisory for Ohio provided by the National Weather Service:

A warm front has passed northward across most of Ohio. Scattered showers and thundershowers linger as warm, moist air is flowing into the state. A low pressure system over the Great Lakes will move east and north, swinging an attendant cool front across Ohio by Wednesday.

Field Operations — Scattered showers and thundershowers will delay field activities on a localized basis through Wednesday. After a short pause, the showers will return again Friday and linger into the weekend. Fields are too soft to support equipment only where showers were locally heavy.

Haying and Harvesting — Drying rates outside of shower areas will be moderate. High relative humidities and light surface winds across the cut hay will hold evaporative losses below peak rates. Dew amounts will be light to moderate each morning, but dryoff will be completed by mid morning. There will be a risk of wetting through Wednesday.

Wheat — Much of the wheat crop has now yellowed. Harvest moisture levels have almost been reached. The crop should now be brought in as soon as possible, since heavy showers could cause the wheat to flatten. This would increase harvest losses. Additional drydown will be slow through Wednesday. Thursday should be an acceptable day for combining.

Herbicide Applications — The corn crop is advancing rapidly where moisture is available, and growers should be careful not to apply herbicides too near tasselling and silk. Soybeans are about to bloom and treatments on soybean fields should be made according to precautions on the label.

Livestock — High temperatures and relative humidities continue to place stress on livestock. Water and shade are necessary, and early morning transport is recommended.

School clerk faces jail

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — The former clerk-treasurer of the Hamilton, Ohio, School District will be sentenced July 11 after pleading guilty to two charges involving misappropriations of school money and materials.

Harold Flowers, who is now a vice president of Texas Southern University, pleaded guilty Monday to falsifying a check for $3,500 for his own purposes and one count of petty theft.

Butler County Common Pleas Court Judge Fred Cramer ordered a presentence investigation.

Flowers was originally named in a 10-count indictment alleging misappropriation of a number of items including cash, a tape recorder, a chair, camera equipment and a diploma picture frame.

The prosecution dropped eight counts following the guilty plea.

The indictments followed a 1976 finding of $6,000 against the school system following an audit by state auditors.

Shale gas plentiful, Feds claim

CLEVELAND (AP) — Federal natural gas officials believe there is enough gas in shale rocks underlying nine Eastern states to supply the nation's needs for more than 100 years.

William J. Overbey, project manager of the government's Eastern Gas Shales Project, said that until recently the potential of gas from the Devonian shale has been overlooked because production was not economical.

Overbey said, however, a contract will be signed soon with East Ohio Gas Co. for research on possible methods of extracting the gas from the extensive shale deposits underlying parts of Ohio, Michigan, Pennsylvania, New York, Illinois, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Alabama.

The rocks hold an estimated 2,400 trillion cubic feet of gas, Overbey said. The United States consumes about 21 trillion cubic feet annually. If only 10 per cent of the Eastern shale gas could be recovered, he said, it would make a big contribution to the nation's gas needs.

Overbey said his project intends to show that gas can be produced economically from the shale basin which geologists say was laid down 350 million years ago in what is termed the Devonian Age.

In areas such as the Big Sandy Valley in eastern Kentucky, the shale has been cracked by natural earth pressures allowing the gas to move readily to a bore hole. Gas wells in such areas produce well.

But elsewhere the cracks have to be blasted, or made by hydraulic fracturing, in order for the gas to flow well. The Eastern Gas Shales Project, with offices in Morgantown, W. Va., is trying to develop other techniques to create fractures in the shale, Overbey said.

Contracts have already been awarded the Ohio Energy and Resource Development Agency to develop fracturing techniques, he said.

Mrs. Frances Trollope, an Englishwoman, published her Domestic Manners of the Americans in 1832, expressing her likes and dislikes of Ohioans. —AP

HOME CANNING

(This is the third of a series on food preservation from Gladys Kirk, County Extension Agent, Home Economics. For free booklets and additional answers to questions on food preservation call the Fayette County Extension Office at 335-1150). Does it pay to Can?

Great savings can be made by homemakers who grow their own garden and have the canning equipment and jars. Often times fruit can be bought reasonably or can be picked by the family for a cheaper rate. Canning equipment and jars are a good investment, because they will last for years if properly treated.

My husband is on a salt-free diet. May I can without salt, or is salt necessary to preserve the vegetables? Yes, you may can without salt. Salt does not affect the keeping quality. This is a great way to save money on special diet foods. Salt can be added at cooking time for other family members.

What About Canning Vegetables in Hot Water Bath or the Oven?

The answer is no. A few people still can this way, but it is not safe. For this reason, hot water bath and oven canning of vegetables cannot be recommended. In air, water, and soil, at all times there are molds, yeasts, and bacteria which cause food spoilage. Fresh vegetables also contain enzymes that may cause undesirable changes in color, flavor, and texture. When vegetables are processed, heat must penetrate each piece of food in the jar sufficiently to stop or slow down the action of the enzymes and to destroy every spoilage organism. A pressure canner temperature of 240 degrees is required to do this.

What Are The Approved Methods of Canning?

There are two safe methods of canning: (1) Water bath method for fruits, acid vegetables, pickles, and relishes, and sauerkraut. (2) Steam pressure method for meats and poultry and non-acid vegetables.

For Canning, What Foods are Considered Acid? Which Low-Acid?

Acid foods are a slight tangy sour taste such as fruits, tomatoes, rhubarb, pimiento, peppers, pickled beets, or other vegetable pickles.

All other vegetables, all meats, poultry, and other foods are considered low-acid.

Must Canned Vegetables Be Boiled Before Tasting or Using?

Yes, they must be boiled or heated at boiling temperature for 10 to 15 minutes by baking, steaming or cooking in some manner. The 10 to 15 minutes may be counted in the cooking time needed to prepare the vegetable for serving. Corn and greens should be boiled for 20 minutes. Stir them some since they tend to pack.

Schaeper-Levy marriage vows exchanged in bride's home

Miss Tamara Jean Schaeper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark J. Schaeper, 754 Fairway Drive, became the bride of Mr. Alan Bruce Levy, son of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Levy of Louisville, Kentucky. The double-ring ceremonies were performed in the home of the bride by her pastor the Rev. Father David Petrey of Saint Colman Catholic Church and by Rabbi Solomon Greenberg of Valley Temple, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. Her twin sisters, Beth and Jill, were her maids of honor. Mr. Levy's brother, James served him as best man. Tammy selected a wedding gown of white silk quiana. The bishop sleeves were of sheer chiffon scattered with Venice lace appliques. An English illusion oval inset on the bodice was edged with lace and the appliques were repeated on the bodice and skirt. Her full chapel train was completely edged in lace. Her veil was held in place by a Juliet cap trimmed with seed pearls and the appliques again were scattered on the illusion veiling. The bridal bouquet was a miniature cascade of stephanotis and ivy centered with a white cymbidium orchid.

The maids of honor were attired in identical pale blue polyester dotted Swiss gowns. The gowns featured portrait necklines encircled with two self-ruffles edged with white lace. The A-line skirts were highlighted by lace edged deep flounces. Matching butterfly picture hats trimmed in pale blue tulle and large white garden flowers completed their ensembles. Each carried a colonial bouquet of miniature blue tipped daisies surrounded by baby's breath and greenery.

Miss Susan Pero presented selected organ numbers before and during the ceremonies.

Mrs. Schaeper chose for her daughter's wedding a mint green organza and lace gown with matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother chose a pale blue long gown with matching jacket and white accessories. Both mothers had corsages of white gladiolias.

The new Mrs. Levy is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. King of this city, and Mrs. Leo J. Schaeper of Delaware, Ohio. Mr. Levy's grandmother is Mrs. Victor Levy of Louisville. The grandmothers and the bride's great-great aunt, Miss Frances Pluckebaum, of Delaware, Ohio wore corsages of carnations and dainty summer flowers.

A reception followed the ceremonies at the Washington Country Club planned by the club hostess, Mrs. Arthur Terry, friend of the family. Senior hostesses, also friends of Mrs. Schaeper's, were Mrs. LaVerne Haugen, Mrs. Paul Johnson, Mrs. Edmond Woodmansee, Mrs. John Bath, Mrs. Paul Crosby, Mrs. Robert Harris and Mrs. Robert Heiny.

The Junior hostesses were Mrs. Keith Ruffner of Hartford, Conn. and Mrs. Fredric Schmitz of Centerville, Ohio, sorority sisters of the bride. Mrs. John Nemeth of Columbus, Ohio and Mrs. Willie Correa of Independence, Kentucky, high school friends, presided at the guest book.

The four-tier wedding cake was decorated with pale blue and cream flowers topped with a fresh colonial, garden bouquet.

The bride and groom both attended Miami University where the bride graduated cum laude with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Education and was awarded a Master's Degree. She is a member of Delta Delta Delta Sorority, and was elected to Kappa Delta Phi Honorary and the Graduate Student Governing Assembly. The groom was a member of Sigma Alpha Alpha Mu social fraternity, Omicron Delta Kappa, men's leadership fraternity, Phi Kappa Phi and Phi Sigma Honorary, Student Body Government Assembly and he served as chief justice of the Student Court. He is presently a student at the University of Louisville Medical School where he is a member of Delta Epsilon Medical Fraternity.

The bride had been honored with lovely showers, one by her mother's friends here, one in Louisville given by Mrs. William Levy's friends, and another in Cincinnati given by the friends she had made while living and teaching in the Indian Hill School District.

The groom's parents entertained at the Terrace Lounge Saturday evening for the families and the out of town guests. The private dining room was decorated with fresh flowers.

After a wedding trip to Hawaii and Southern California, the young couple will be at home at 2505 Brownsboro Lane, Apt. E3 in Louisville, Kentucky 40206. Mr. Levy will resume his studies and Mrs. Levy will be on the staff of Kentucky Country Day School.

In 1933, during the Great Depression, the number of wage-earners in Ohio dropped to 472,000, from a high of 740,000 in 1929; industrial production dropped to $3.3 billion from a high of $5 billion.—AP

If the Shoe Fits..

By . . .
WES

Are Shoes Expensive?

The reason that shoes seem expensive is because we require two of them. Think of the material and workmanship that goes into one men's shoe — then compare the cost of that one shoe with the cost of a simple cloth necktie. Or compare the cost of one carefully constructed ladies shoe with the cost of a simple cloth neckscarf — and we think you will agree that shoes are a real bargain.

Keep in mind, too, that neckties and scarves are of uniform size in each style, whereas shoes must be of myriad sizes, shapes, and materials. And no item of clothing is so critical to physical health as are the shoes on our feet. We take pride in their fair and reasonable cost.

U.S. won't pressure Israel

Carter still irritated with Begin

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, trying to ease apprehension among Israel's supporters, says the United States has no intention of imposing a settlement in the Middle East.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance offered the latest assurance to an American Jewish leader Monday, and promised support for "full normalization" of relations between the Arab states and Israel.

At the same time, though, the administration is registering — in public — its irritation with the hard-line views of Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin. And Israel is openly acknowledging that there are differences of opinion between Washington and Jerusalem.

In a pointed statement issued by the State Department, the new Begin government was put on notice that no territory, including the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River, can be "automatically excluded" from Middle East peace talks.

Begin last week declared that there is no condition under which Israel would withdraw to its old borders or agree to a Palestinian state on the West Bank of the Jordan and in Gaza.

U.S. officials said they were "disturbed" by Begin's remarks, adding that they seemed to contradict Israel's stated willingness to enter negotiations with the Arabs without pre-conditions.

In the midst of this controversy, Rabbi Alexander Schindler of New York called on Vance to convey "an expression of the American Jewish community's apprehension" that the Carter administration would try to impose peace terms in the Middle East.

Schindler, head of the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations, said Vance assured him no such plan exists.

The new Israeli government, like its predecessors, insists that for a settlement to be durable its terms must be set by Israel and the Arab states in direct talks — not imposed by an outside power.

Saying he was "exceedingly satisfied," the rabbi said there was "absolutely no retreat" by Vance from the administration's insistence that full normal relations accompany Israeli withdrawal.

Concern among Israel's supporters was raised because the administration statement called for "steps toward the normalization of relations" and not for full relations themselves.

Local woman slightly injured in accident

One driver was injured in a two-car collision about 4:19 p.m. Monday at the intersection of Columbus Avenue and Lewis Street, according to Washington C.H. police officers.

The Fayette County Life Squad took Tammy S. Harper, 1144 Campbell St., to Fayette Memorial Hospital after the car she was driving struck another vehicle. She was treated for abdominal injuries and released.

The 19-year-old Ms. Harper told the officers she could not remember what had happened. However, the other driver, Tammy K. Matson, 19, of 847 Potomac Drive, stated she was westbound on Columbus Avenue when Ms. Harper's car turned right onto Columbus from Lewis Street and struck the side of her car.

Ms. Harper was cited by investigating officers for failure to yield the right of way.

Another Washington C.H. woman claimed injury Monday when the brakes on her station wagon failed and the vehicle struck a dirt embankment off the right side of Creek Road, just east of Rockbridge Road.

Fayette County Sheriff's deputies report Beverly J. Hargis, 34, of 1049 Country Club Court complained of dizziness and a headache after she apparently hit her head when the car struck the embankment. She refused treatment.

The report stated Ms. Hargis was driving northwest on Creek Road about 10:25 a.m. and tried to apply her brakes when she rounded a right curve headed down hill. When the brake pedal went to the floor, she steered the car to the right into a ditch striking the embankment according to the report.

David J. Barber, 17, of Leesburg, was cited by Fayette County sheriff's deputies for failure to yield after he tried to cross U.S. 22-E on Ohio 753-N Monday morning and was hit broadside by another vehicle.

Bill J. Thompson, 39, of Clarksburg, told deputies he was headed west on U.S. 22 and was unable to stop when Barber pulled into the intersection. No one was injured.

Only slight damage occurred Monday evening when 18-year-old Kevin M. Bonecutter, 605 Washington Ave., made a left turn from N. North Street onto E. Court Street and struck another vehicle.

Bonecutter told Washington C.H. police officers his pickup truck began to skid on the wet pavement after he turned east onto Court Street. Chester M. Newlan, 61, 217 E. Main St., the other driver, had been stopped at the traffic signal when the accident occurred. No one was injured, but Bonecutter was cited by investigating officers for failure to control his vehicle.

Man injured when rifle shell explodes

A New Holland man injured his right eye Sunday night, according to a report by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department, when a rifle shell exploded.

Forty-year-old Gordon Glaze Writsel, Rt. 1, Egypt Pike, New Holland, told a sheriff's deputy he was loading a .22 caliber rifle with "250" shells about 7:30 p.m. After firing the weapon, one of the shells exploded.

Writsel was taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital where he was treated for a foreign body in his right eye and released.

Washington C. H. police officers report an automobile windshield was accidentally smashed Monday afternoon at 924 E. Market St.

William Ferguson, of that address, told police officers his neighbor's grandson was playing baseball in the yard about 4 p.m. when the ball struck the windshield of his Dodge Charger and cracked it. Damage was estimated at $185.

Assembly conferees near accord

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Senate-House conferees hoped to complete their approval today of the state's $13 billion state appropriations bill, sending it on its way for prompt floor consideration in both chambers.

Senate Finance Chairman Harry Meshe, D-33 Youngstown, said late Monday it was "conceivable" that the legislature could send it on to Gov. James A. Rhodes later today, well in advance of Friday's fiscal deadline. The state's new biennium starts Friday.

The six-member conference committee moved with surprising speed earlier Monday in working out most of the bill's problem areas. At least one of the two Republicans on the committee said he was thinking about supporting it.

"I'm not fiercely opposed to it," said Sen. Stanley J. Aronoff, R-8 Cincinnati, adding however, that he disliked the "trickery" of majority Democrats in seeking to restrict the GOP governor's veto powers in an accompanying budget "language" bill.

Meshe called a late night meeting Monday of his finance panel to approve a component transportation-highway safety budget, being considered separately by the lawmakers.

That bill, appropriating $1.38 billion for the transportation department and $156.8 million for highway safety, was immediately scheduled for a floor vote in the Senate on Wednesday.

It already has been approved by the House, but will have to return to that chamber for consideration of amendments.

In other action, the Senate returned from weekend recess for a Monday night floor session to approve 31-0 a legislative study of school desegregation problems in Ohio, including alternatives to court-ordered busing. The enabling resolution now goes to the House.

The budget conference committee reaffirmed a $250,000 appropriation for the study Monday, almost at the same time of a U.S. Supreme Court decision saying, in effect, that Dayton had gone too far with busing in its effort to bring racial balance to that city's schools.

As expected, the Senate refused 24-6 to approve House changes in a bill requiring Ohio's governor and lieutenant governor for election as a team, starting in 1978.

The two chambers differ over whether the two candidates should join as a team on the primary ballot, or seek nomination separately and then form a tandem ticket for the November election.

A majority of senators want the latter. Their vote cleared the way for a conference committee.

In less than five hours Monday, the budget conference committee worked out most of the Senate-House variations. The Senate version generally prevailed, in part, at least, because of the fast approaching deadline for the bill's passage.

The six-member panel moved promptly to put part of a separate legislative intent bill into the immediately effective appropriations measure.

Majority Democrats had to make the shift after Republicans refused to go along with an emergency clause on the intent bill, which contains actual spending authority.

Placed into the appropriations measure were amendments allowing education subsidies, welfare payments, state paydays, and other obligations to go on uninterrupted pending the 90 days which will be required for the intent bill to take effect.

Republican conferees went along with the amendments, but deplored the majority decision to split the budget. Aronoff, who offered an unsuccessful amendment to combine the two measures, called it "Tom Foolery" and questioned if the move can withstand court scrutiny.

He claims Democrats want to usurp the managerial functions of Rhodes' executive departments, while Democrats say the same departments have ignored the legislature in the past as to spending priorities.

House Finance Chairman Myrl H. Shoemaker, D-88 Bourneville, who presided over the joint panel, went over a list of 87 Senate amendments to the House version of the budget. Most were approved without question, although a handful was kept aside for final decisions today.

House conferees raised only one major objection. With help from Aronoff, they restored a $4.2 million outlay for the agriculture department to retain its meat inspection program in the new biennium. The Senate had voted to let the federal government take over the program.

Otherwise, the Senate bill remained pretty well intact at the close of Monday's deliberations.

Shoemaker, one of the more conservative House members, conceded he didn't care for many of the Senate changes, and added that he felt the entire budget was "too much." But he said "sometimes you just get outvoted on these things."

BOUND FOR EUROPE — Kathy Edwards, left, John Rhoads, center, and Robin Brakeall are representing Fayette County as members of the All-Ohio Youth Choir, now on tour in Europe. The three youths left Port Columbus Monday at 7 p.m. and were to have landed in England about 2:30 a.m. this morning. The choir will visit six countries in 22 days before leaving Zurich, Switz. next month.

Frog helps girl's future

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A frog with no name has won its owner $500 and a jump on the cost of her college education.

Nita Hill, 18, urged her frog out of a circle 20 feet in diameter Sunday ahead of 400 other contestants in the final heat of the 11th annual Dublin, Ohio, Frog Jump, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club.

Miss Hill has entered the contest every year, but this was her last chance since she is at the maximum age. So she risked the $2.50 entry fee for old name and it paid off.

As for Prince Charming, it's back to his home pond, she said.

Opening lead - jack of hearts.

Let's assume you're West and lead the jack of hearts against three notrump. Declarer wins in dummy with the ace, your partner plays the deuce, and South contributes the three. Declarer plays the king of clubs from dummy and, when you win with the ace, the question is what to play next.

Of course, if you saw all four hands, you'd shift to a diamond. But even if you've seen only the West and North hands, it is not difficult to demonstrate that a diamond lead at trick three offers the only chance to defeat the contract.

Judging from your partner's deuce of hearts at trick one, showing a lack of interest in a heart continuation, it is reasonable to assume that South has the K-Q of hearts. It is also easy to see, from looking at dummy, that declarer will make at least nine tricks if you play a spade, a heart or a club at trick three.

You therefore have no choice but to lead a diamond next — because that offers the one and only chance to beat the contract. The diamond shift necessarily presupposes that your partner has the ace of diamonds. This is not really a far-fetched supposition, considering South's limited response of one notrump.

However, you should be careful about which diamond you play at trick three. If you make the mistake of leading the deuce of diamonds, declarer winds up making the contract after he follows low from dummy on the deuce lead.

But if you lead the king of diamonds, followed by the deuce, you defeat the contract when East wins dummy's queen with the ace and returns a third diamond. Your J-9 gobble up South's 10-8 and declarer goes down one.

The first responsibility of the American Red Cross is to help people in trouble. And over the past 12 months we've given emergency aid (food, housing, clothing or medical care) to over a quarter of a million people. As a result, we face the balance of this year millions of dollars short of disaster relief funds. So we're asking you for help, to pass along to someone who needs it. In Focus by Charlie Pensyl

There is much fine equipment on the market today and it's not too easy to select the camera that will do the best job for your purpose. One of the big factors in selection of equipment is the service you can expect from your dealer and from the importer. This is most important. Also, I'm sorry to say, there is much junk on today's market that is passed off to the public as good stuff. Some of this stuff is really sad. The thing is, it takes knowledge and experience to select the good and avoid the junk.

Among the better cameras on today's market are some that, in our opinion, are far overpriced. We feel that this overpricing is due to a fantastic advertising budget. That, too, is something to think about when you go to buy a camera.

But just remember that the best equipment in the world won't help you a bit if your processing is not up to standard. The most important factor in the photographic process is the processing of the final slide or print. To settle for less than the best in lab work is to let the final procedure render valueless that top-quality lens, the quality of the film, and the skill and artistry that went into the exposure. Why mess up good pix by settling for poor processing? That's something to think about.

Sunshine law loophole fought

By TOM DIEMER
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Stark County lawmaker, who fancies himself as an "unofficial oversight committee of one" for the state's "sunshine" law, is preparing a bill to close an apparent loophole in the open meetings statute.

Sen. Robert D. Freeman, D-29 Canton, is concerned about a June 15 Ohio Supreme Court decision which suggested that "harm or prejudice" must be shown by those claiming the sunshine law has been violated.

The law, authored by Freeman, requires most state and local government meetings to be held in public, after sufficient notification is given the public.

Failure to comply with the law can result in a nullification of the actions taken behind closed doors, as well as other consequences.

This happened recently when a judge invalidated several budget ordinances passed by the Lorain City Council at an open meeting, following a private discussion.

In his decision, Summit County Common Pleas Court Judge James Barbuto, who was filling in on the Lorain bench, added some thoughts on the law:

"The 'sunshine' law was not enacted to hinder the effective operation of governmental machinery. It was enacted to grant the people of Ohio a means of access to government information.

"This is the foundation upon which the concepts of popular sovereignty and consent of the governed rest. Hopefully, the sunshine law and other similar pieces of legislation will aid in making the 'backroom decisions era' a creature of the past."

The Ohio Supreme Court ruling does not run contrary to that philosophy, but it did raise an issue that could "gut" the act, in Freeman's view.

The court refused to overturn an Ohio Bell Telephone Co. rate increase as it applied to burglar alarm companies using telephone line circuits. Central Station Electrical Protection Association had alleged that the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio violated the law by not giving proper notice of Bell rate hearings.

However, the court noted: "Appellant has not claimed that it was in any manner prejudiced by this absence of notice. This court will not reverse an order of the commission (PUCO) upon an assignment of error without a showing of concomitant harm or prejudice."

Violation of the notification requirement does not call for in-validation of action taken at the subsequent meeting. It provides for an injunctive process to force notification and possible removal from office of officials who refuse to comply.

The problem that Freeman is concerned with is the possibility that the "showing of concomitant harm or prejudice" standard could be applied to the act in general.

"Harm and prejudice are presumed when the meeting is closed," Freeman says, and his bill will make that presumption part of the law.

But he expects to face opposition from lawmakers who want to see the law softened. "There are a lot of guys who will know this is a more obscure issue," he says, making it easier to be against.

Freeman knows he is in a delicate area. He left the floor recently before a Senate vote on whether party caucuses should be open to the public, an issue opposed by most of his Democratic colleagues.

When Freeman did not return for the roll call, his aide said he had taken ill and was suffering from nervous tension.

Brown sees Ohio death penalty OKd

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Atty. Gen. William Brown says he thinks the U.S. Supreme Court will look favorably on the state's death penalty law which it has agreed to review.

The high court agreed Monday to hear arguments on whether application of Ohio's death penalty statute constitutes cruel and unusual punishment.

The case involves the appeal of Willie Lee Bell, 19, who was sentenced to die in the electric chair for his part in the 1974 slaying of Julius Graber in Cincinnati.

Bell was convicted of aggravated murder, aggravated robbery and kidnapping.

The Ohio Department of Corrections lists 70 men and three women now facing execution in the state. The Bell case is expected to have a bearing on all of them.

Dr. Simon Dinitz, co-director of a dangerous offender program at the Academy for Contemporary Problems in Columbus, said he knows of no reason for the court to upset the state law.

He said the court had wanted to limit discretion available to trial courts through specifications.

"I don't see a society such as ours imposing death but if you talk about the law itself I think it probably will be upheld," Donitz said.

Benson A. Wolman, head of the Ohio chapter, American Civil Liberties Union, said he does not feel the current law measures up to the high court's standards.

"The major flaw is the failure of the Ohio law to provide sufficient mitigating circumstances for a judge to consider when deciding whether the death penalty is to be imposed," Wolman said.

"This case raises the issue of whether the death penalty is being evenly applied or arbitrarily and capriciously applied."

TALENT SHOW — A group of 42 American Field Service students spending several days in Fayette County got together Monday night for a talent show at the Ohio Army National Guard Armory. The foreign-exchange students displayed their singing and dancing talents. This morning, the 42 AFS students left by bus for points East and eventually an airplane ride to their homelands.

Housing market not all gloomy

NEW YORK (AP) — In many respects the reports sound terrible. New, single-family housing has been priced beyond the means of the median-income household. The American dream is being denied young Americans. So it is said.

But a lot of Americans apparently don't think so.

From the University of Michigan's Survey Research Center comes the report that in its May study the greatest improvement in consumer buying attitudes was in regard to houses.

Sixty-two per cent of those studied, the center declared, felt that buying conditions for homes were favorable compared to 48 per cent three months earlier. The May level was the highest since 1972.

Evidence that the opinion is translated into action comes from builder reports that now indicate about 1.5 million single-family dwellings and another half-million units in multifamily structures may be started in 1977.

Add to this the results of a continuing monthly survey by the National Association of Realtors that indicates about 3.4 million resale homes will change hands this year and you have an understanding of the market's strength.

There are even more surprising aspects of the current market, perhaps the strongest in U.S. history. It has developed in contradiction to the forecasts; it has weathered some of the worst economic conditions in decades.

In January and February, when parts of the land were locked in ice, preventing the most elementary economic transactions in some areas, sales of new single-family units soared 30 per cent over a year earlier.

The resale, or existing, home market has an even longer-term growth trend. In January 1975, sales had fallen to 2 million units a year. But, as prices rose, so did sales, totaling more than 3 million units in 1976.

Still, it is true that the typical $15,000 a year income is insufficient to buy the typical, newly built, single-family house, the median price of which was $45,000 last year but may be closing in on $50,000 now.

But median means middle, and that means one-half the new houses on the market are priced below $50,000. Last year the median price of resale homes was $37,300, and a good many sold for $10,000-$15,000 less than that.

Houses are available for purchase, and with personal income rising at a rate faster than that of inflation, some homebuyers have had a boost to their confidence, which had been lagging.

When people are confident they are more inclined to take on risks, such as debts. Many young people, it would appear, are convinced that they must take the plunge now or risk even deeper financial water next year.

Asked to explain why they felt today's housing market conditions were favorable, 1 in 2 respondents told Michigan's surveyors that prices would only be higher tomorrow. Measured that way, they tend to view today's prices as bargains.

Joint panel eyes utility bill funds

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A joint committee considering the state budget bill cleared the way Monday for Ohio to receive about $13.3 million in federal funds to help pay indigent citizens' utility bills.

However, the funds would be restricted to bills left over from last winter, and county welfare departments will have come up with a means of determining recipient eligibility.

The joint committee approved a budget bill amendment providing a $1.3 million outlay in state matching funds, required to receive the $13.3 million.

Budget Director William W. Wilkins told the committee he received a letter earlier in the day from the federal government, advising him that the $13.3 million is available to Ohio.

But he said federal restrictions include, in addition to the 10 per cent matching share from the state, that counties must come forth with an eligibility formula.

Wilkins indicated he thinks this could be difficult, especially since the federal outlay also is contingent upon assurances that the funds will be distributed to qualifying citizens no later than the end of August.
